Headteacher's Introduction

Dear Parents and carers,

We've had another exciting week at school. It feels like time is flying – I can't believe it's already the end of January.

This week we had a visit from Tony at YoYo, the children had a great day creating, acting out and rehearsing their roles in preparation for the Mystery Plays they will be performing at St Matthews Church on the 3rd February at 2.30pm. It's sure to be a wonderful event and it would be lovely to see you all there.

Finally just a reminder that the Big Garden Birdwatch is happening this weekend, a lovely opportunity to get together and spot as many birds as you can. See the next page of the newsletter for a link to where you can take part.

Have a wonderful weekend

Absence Reporting

Please can we remind parents and carers that all absences must be reported daily to the school office before 8:50am, giving a clear reason for absence.

A message can be left on the school answerphone at any time. For cases of ongoing illness you must contact the school every day, otherwise this could be recorded as unauthorised absence.

Any unavoidable medical appointments, e.g. hospital appointments, must be reported to the school office in advance, and a form completed.

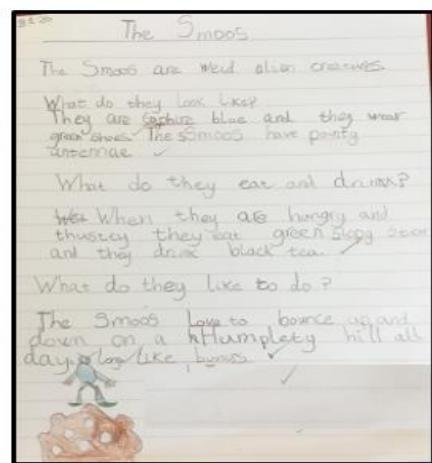

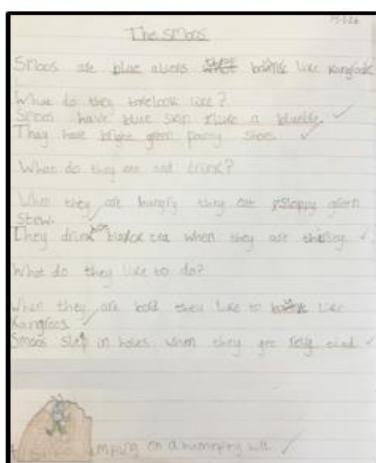

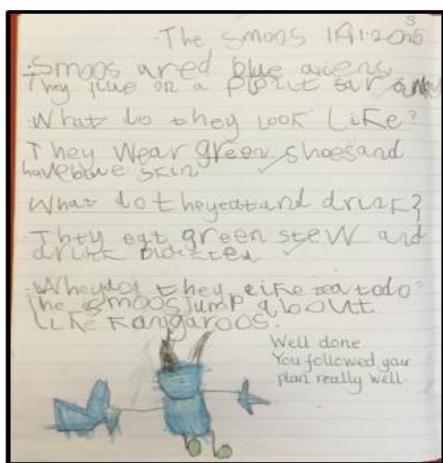

Any requests for other time off during term time will be recorded as unauthorised absence, unless there are exceptional circumstances. A form must also be completed in advance for all term time absences.

School Newsletter

This week, our Reception children have been creating some fantastic 3D aliens using shaping, joining, and lots of imaginative thinking. They showed great confidence as they selected materials and experimented with different ways to build their designs. I am sure you will agree that they look amazing.

Here are some fantastic non-chronological reports about The Smoos, linked to our class book The Smeds and the Smoos. The children carefully applied their writing skills, using conjunctions, adjectives, and key features of non-chronological reports to organise their ideas clearly. They completed their work by adding their own illustrations and captions.

Acorn Class

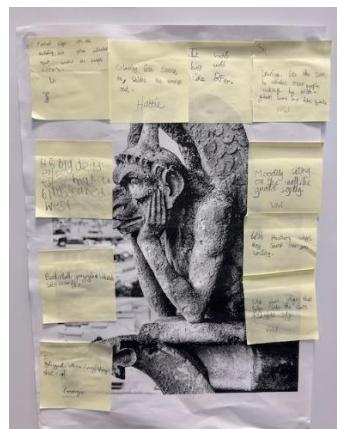

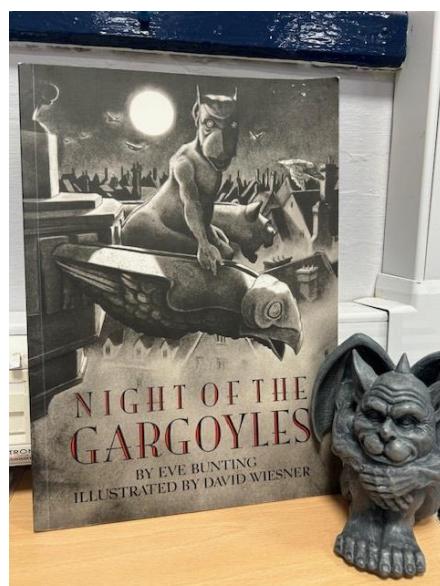

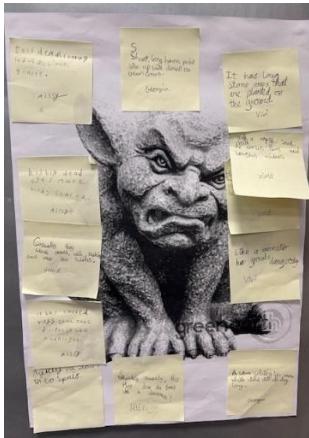

School Newsletter

In Maths, Willow class have used their increasing times table knowledge to explore factor pairs and inverse relationships. We are now able to access Times Table Rockstars at school and, on Wednesdays, children have access to a TTRS lunchtime club. It has also been encouraging to see increased participation in TTRS at home for many children this week. Where children are learning their times tables at home (special shout out to Violet this week!), there is a noticeable positive impact on mathematical confidence. The national expectation is for children to have a solid rapid recall of all multiplication and division facts by the end of Year 4 (and there will be a screening test) so this is a big focus for us in school and how you can help your child at home.

In English, we have read the narrative poetry book called, 'Night of the Gargoyles'. This wonderful text has stimulated our creative writing and the images have inspired us to draw our own Gargoyles. Next week, we are hoping to make our own clay sculpture gargoyles to keep our class pet gargoyle, Geoff, company!

School Newsletter

As part of our Victorians topic, Sycamore have been learning about life in the Workhouse. This week, they took on the role of inmates and made a video diary detailing their lives as children living in the Workhouse: how and why they had ended up in the Workhouse, their jobs, food and punishments. They also learnt about Dr Barnardo and his work to found schools and homes for poor and deprived children.

Mrs Davies's expedition to the Andes

On the 20th February 2026 my 5 teammates and I will set off on a challenge of a lifetime to hopefully achieve a world's first! My good friend and fellow team member Steph became suddenly unwell in 2019 due to a neurological condition, which amongst other complex symptoms, took away her ability to mobilise. Steph was an experienced horse rider when she became ill, and one of the things that kept her going throughout her rehabilitation was the thought of one day sitting on her beloved horse again.

In 2023 myself and 7 others helped Steph to become the first wheelchair dependent person to cross the Pyrenees from France to Spain on horseback. However, Steph wasn't quite done with breaking down barriers and rewriting the rule book on what a wheelchair dependent person can and can't do. She very quickly came up with the idea of crossing the Andes, again on horseback, where she truly has her independence.

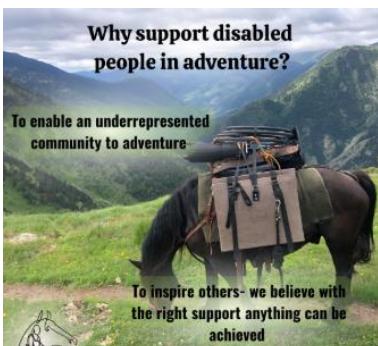

The 'Ride to Independence' expedition is expected to take us 7 days, leaving from Mendoza in Argentina, traversing the Andes reaching heights of up to 4,400m and finishing in Santiago, Chile. We will be following the route used by General San Martin in 1817, when he led the Army of the Andes to liberate Chile from the Spanish monarchy. We will ride the magnificent native Peruvian Paso and Chilean Criollo horses, with pack mules carrying all the kit, camping gear and most importantly Steph's wheelchair.

This is going to be a huge challenge not only for Steph but for all of us as a team. We will be spending between 6 to 9 hours in a saddle a day, coping with rocky terrain, steep slopes, changes in altitude, and extreme weather conditions. We can fully expect to see intense sun, high winds, and snow all in one day. Our bond as a team will be pushed to the limits as we will have to overcome the unexpected challenges presented in these kinds of extreme environments.

To make our crazy dream a reality, it has meant hours of tirelessly fundraising and the end is almost in sight, but we still need every penny to get us over the finish line! We truly appreciate everything donated. Steph and her husband Jon have now set up their own not for profit company, Equine Para-Adventures, to help support other disabled riders to make their 'impossible' dream a reality and have their own adventure. All funds raised above our target will be going towards this amazing cause.

At the end of school on Wednesday 28th January I will be in the playground raising funds for this expedition. I will be running a one hundred square style raffle, where you can buy a square for £1 and if you pick the winning square there will be a great chocolatey prize!! The winner will be announced after school on Friday 13th January.

Here is the link to our short team video, which explains more about us and what we hope to achieve,
